Description

Leonardo Roda, Nomads, oil on canvas, signed, early 20th centuryThis oil painting on canvas by Leonardo Roda, signed in the lower right corner, depicts a lively scene of everyday life outdoors, set in a rural landscape.Dimensions: Framed 115 x 96 cm / Canvas H 69 cm x W 89 cmDescription of the workThe work depicts a group of people in a rural camp, probably a nomadic community, next to two wooden wagons, typical of caravans. The scene takes place in a clearing at the edge of a forest, under a large tree with autumn foliage. Some of the characters, mainly women and children, are engaged in everyday activities: they are talking and moving around the wagons and horses. In the foreground, two horses--one white and one dark--are slowly advancing towards the observer, while two others are grazing nearby.The composition is balanced, with a skilful distribution of natural light filtering through the branches and reflecting on the grass, the bright clothes of the figures and the water of a small stream in the foreground. The color is treated with warmth and softness, evoking a romantic and pastoral sensibility. The atmosphere is peaceful but lively, conveying a sense of community and freedom.
