Description

Authentic 17th-century Westerwald salt-glazed stoneware pitcher, decorated in the characteristic shades of cobalt blue and gray. This pitcher features a rich decoration of applied circular motifs and an expressive mask on the neck. Its original hinged pewter lid adds to its value. The ergonomic handle and typical Westerwald style are perfectly in keeping with the period. The pewter lid bears a maker's mark on the inside. Specifications: Origin: Westerwald, Germany Date: 17th century Material: Salt-glazed stoneware Color: Cobalt blue and gray Decoration: Raised rosette motifs and mask ornament Condition: Fine antique condition, with normal signs of wear for its age. The handle fittings have been restored and there is a crack around the lower neck rim. (see detailed photos).
