Description

Hand-knotted Na'in rug in Kork wool and silk, Iran, circa 1980, in very good, if not perfect, condition. This piece measures 254 cm wide by 382 cm long. Na'in rugs are considered to have the finest knots in the art of modern rug making. Their place of manufacture, east of Isfahan, led them to be considered among the Khorasan types while still representing a distinct group. They are tightly knotted and therefore very durable. shades are blues and blacks laid on cream or white backgrounds (our model), sometimes combined with straw yellow, but also, more rarely, deep red. The thin ground knot uses silk, fine wool, and cotton in densities ranging from 500,000 to 900,000 knots per square meter. Our model does not deviate from these rules and offers us a magnificent, high-quality piece, this generously sized medallion features prominent borders in the Persian style and taste. The blues typically used are found on the domes of mosques in ancient Persia and Central Asia. Kork wool is the softest wool, taken from under the neck and belly of lambs during their first shearing, resulting in rugs that are incredibly soft to the touch. This rug has been professionally and ecologically cleaned. Original tension bands remain under the rug, ensuring its rigidity once hung. Impeccable selvages and pile, short fringes.
