Description

An elegant desk lamp produced by JUMO, model 71, a true classic of post-war French lighting. This model is distinguished by its clean lines and ingenious articulation system allowing for dual orientation: tilting of the reflector and height adjustment via a folding chrome-plated metal arm. The cylindrical reflector, characteristic of JUMO, rests on a weighted base sheathed in the same ribbed material. The overall design reflects the functional and modernist style of the period. This model is often mistakenly attributed to Eileen Gray due to its understated, architectural lines. An iconic lamp, sought after for its refined industrial aesthetic and mechanical ingenuity.
