Description

A glazed ceramic trinket dish with a figurative decoration depicting stylized figures against a dark background. The decoration is contrasted in light colors and highlighted by a brown outline. The piece is signed Filder. Eugène Fidler (1910-1990) was a French ceramist active in the second half of the 20th century. He was part of the post-war revival of artistic ceramics, with a body of work characterized by stylized figuration and graphic design. His work was exhibited in several salons and exhibitions dedicated to the decorative arts in France.
