Description

Elegant pair of mahogany display cases with Carrara marble top, 1830-1840, Livorno. The piece of furniture has two tapered columns on the pillars and two glass doors with period glass. The feet are made of finely turned "onions". The interior has shelves (pane in mahogany on the thickness) adjustable in height, which allow a functional display of objects, porcelain or collections. Or they can also be used as bookcases. The two pieces of furniture require light restoration. One of the two is slightly taller.
