Description

Verlys Opalescent Glass Paperweight - "Three Birds" - circa 1930. This elegant opalescent glass paperweight was produced by the Verlys Glassworks in the 1930s. The design depicts three perched birds, sculpted from a single piece of glass with the milky, iridescent effects typical of Verlys production. The rounded, soft composition particularly highlights the variations in opalescence, shifting from milky white to subtle bluish reflections depending on the light. The piece is molded and pressed, with a beautiful rendering of volume and material transitions. The "Verlys" signature is embossed on the base.
