inspired by ancient nomadic rugs. Some, like our model, have softer, rounder shapes and intricate decorations. A prominent medallion is located in the center of the rug in most cases. The finish includes fringes at one end and a kilim-style edge at the other. They are knotted with strong, thick, lustrous yarn, often dyed with natural dyes and spun in The hand. This yarn provides a durable surface and a beautiful color palette. They all share the characteristic of now being woven with cotton warp threads and a weft thread between each row of knots. Their durability is ideal for high-traffic areas such as hallways and living rooms. They are decorated with motifs from nature: leaves, flowers, branches, and arabesques, framed by floral designs. The beauty of our Nahavand rug lies in the combinations of shades--peach, blue, orange, gray, red, beige, dusty rose, and red--that stand out skillfully against a midnight blue background. The blues of Nahavand rugs are always extraordinary. The ancient city of Nahavand in western Iran is one of the main carpet-producing regions in Iran. It still produces Persian rugs of excellent quality today, enjoying a very high reputation. This rug has been professionally and ecologically cleaned.
