Description

The "tavolo con ruote" coffee table by Gae Aulenti, produced by Fontana Arte, is an iconic piece of 20th-century design. It is part of the collection of the Museum of Modern Art (MoMA) in New York. Designed by the Italian architect Gae Aulenti in 1980, this coffee table features a 15mm thick beveled float glass top. The industrial casters with black lacquered metal forks contrast with the lightness of the glass and allow the table to be moved easily from one place to another in the living room. This table is available in four different sizes. Our table is the largest version. It has two corner brackets. Circa 1980.
