Henri Darnaud (1905-1985) was a French painter, engraver, and lithographer, a leading figure of Lyon abstraction. Departing from the two major currents of lyrical abstraction and geometric abstraction, he developed a personal path of which he became a pioneer: pointillist abstraction. Pushing the pointillism and divisionism inherited from Seurat to the point of total erasure of the motif, he created compositions made solely of vibrant colors, where the represented object disappears in favor of pure
