Description

Pair of 19th century pastels of pretty young women in the Louis XV style. The first: This is a delightful 19th century pastel depicting a young woman in the 18th century style, reclining on a cushion and holding a jewel while lost in thought and reverie. She wears fashionable clothes from the Louis XV period, and the interior behind her is also from the Louis XV period. A beautiful young woman reclining. The second: it could be the same young woman, but this time fully awake and playing with a kitten. She wears a lace headdress over a lovely dress and a bow around her neck. The kitten's pose is very realistic, and the young woman's face, with its penetrating gaze, is quite charming. The reflections you see in the photos are due to the protective glass covering the pastels. The colors are very fresh, and the pastels are of superb quality. They are framed and protected by glass. Beautiful stucco and giltwood frames decorated with acanthus leaves. A small chip in the lower right corner is visible in the photos. There are a few traces of old dampness, barely noticeable on the pastels. The young woman's face is magnificent; these beautiful pastels are delightful, and they exude a certain charm. Much more beautiful in person. Dimensions: 44 cm long by 36.5 cm high and 62 cm by 54 cm Each pastel comes with a frame. We deliver and ship worldwide; please contact us for a precise quote.
