Description

A set of three ceramic figures created by Eugène Fidler in the second half of the 20th century. These stylized figures exhibit the formal characteristics typical of the artist's work. Eugène Fidler (1910-1990) was a French ceramicist active in the second half of the 20th century. He was part of the post-war revival of artistic ceramics, with a body of work marked by stylized figuration and graphic design. His work was featured in several salons and exhibitions dedicated to the decorative arts in France.
