Description

This magnificent pair of Landscape Stones is an exceptional example of Chinese mineral art.

These flat, polished rectangular slabs are carved from hard rocks, likely jasper or dendritic chalcedony, and are prized for their ability to evoke natural scenes. The first, in ochre-yellow tones, displays dark veins reminiscent of solitary trees or calligraphic elements. The second, an elegant gray, is adorned with spectacular dendritic patterns formed by mineral oxides, creating the captivating illusion of misty mountain landscapes. Each stone is enhanced by a custom-carved hardwood base. This type of piece, ideal for contemplation, is in keeping with the tradition of scholar's objects. Estimated Mid-20th Century. 7.2cm x 12cm and 7.4cm x

12cm
