Description

A five-arm chandelier with a structure combining solid wood, silver-plated metal, and striated amber pressed glass shades. The central stem is made of turned silver-plated metal, resting on a wooden hub. The arms are metal, with a leafy design typical of Art Deco production. Each arm supports a thick amber-tinted glass shade, encircled by gold lines. Original chain suspension with a metal canopy. The wiring is functional. The overall condition is good, with a patina consistent with its age. There are a few old insect bites in the wood, visible in the photographs, but these do not weaken the structure. No cracks or chips in the glass. H50 x W75 x D75
