create tapestries or textile works where each stitch is made by hand, allowing for very precise and durable results.
Technique: Threads of wool, silk, or linen are individually pierced into the support's warp using a special needle. Each motif is entirely hand-stitched, unlike industrial tapestries where weaving is mechanical. This technique produces subtle relief and highly detailed patterns, highly valued in textile art.
Advantages: A tapestry made with the "Point Piqûre Main" technique is unique, of exceptional quality, and durable. It can be considered a work of art rather than mere decoration.
In summary, this is a traditional French artisanal method that guarantees the tapestry's value and authenticity.
