Description

Hollywood Regency style screen, 1970s

Large and refined padded divider with 5 doors.

Covered on the back in green velvet tending towards gold.

The front is lined in silk with optical black and white geometric motifs on a gold background.

From a distance the black and white lines seem to merge into a single silver band.

In Hollywood Regency style, it takes its name from the California film industry, widespread approximately from the 1920s to the 1950s.
