Description

A 18th/19th-century repoussé copper grain measure decorated with a castle coat of arms. One side features a coat of arms surmounted by an eagle, flanked by a cornucopia overflowing with fruits and vegetables, symbolizing a rich and abundant cuisine. The other side depicts a magnificent fleur-de-lis with roots protruding from it, suggesting it will anchor itself firmly in the ground. The interior is tin-lined with graduated scales and a handle to assist in lifting the measure when it is full or partially filled. This is a very rare early 19th-century item that has survived to the present day and is in good condition with signs of use and age. Height excluding handle: 38.5 cm, base diameter: 31 cm, neck diameter: 30 cm. This item is available for immediate purchase, payable via PayPal. We also
