Description

Superb Japanese ivory okimono - father with children (signed Seiko). Beautifully carved and highly detailed, this okimono is from the Meiji period. The scene depicts a traveling musician playing a drum, accompanied by two children in motion. The expressive faces, the refined patterns of the kimonos, and the dynamic composition attest to high-quality craftsmanship. The piece rests on an oval base with a beautiful natural patina and bears a red cartouche signed Seiko. A charming decorative piece, highly sought after by collectors. Will be shipped with a EU Cites certificate, EU shipping only.
