Description

This large 19th-century jewelry box captivates with its refined decoration and exquisite craftsmanship. Made of deep black lacquered wood, it is adorned with delicate floral and avian scenes painted in gold, typical of the Asian aesthetic of the period: birds in flight, stylized foliage, and baskets of flowers compose a poetic and balanced iconography. The interior, accessible via a drop-front lid, two drawers, and a double door, offers generous storage capacity, ideal for organizing jewelry, accessories, or personal items. This box is both a practical object and a true decorative piece, capable of enhancing a console table, chest of drawers, or display cabinet. A charming object that testifies to the taste for Asian decorative arts in the 19th century. Perfect for collectors, decorators, or lovers of
