

Royal Copenhagen - No 464 Sculpin- Rare Fish

590 EUR

Period : 20th century

Condition : Très bon état

Material : Porcelain

Length : 19

Description

A rare porcelain figurine from the Royal Copenhagen Manufactory depicting a bottom-dwelling fish, "The Bullhead" (Sculpin), a subject uncommon in the factory's production.

The sculpture, particularly naturalistic, highlights the animal's characteristic posture resting on the seabed, with its broad pectoral fins extended. The paintwork, with its subtle gradations of blue and gray, finely renders the smooth, moist appearance of the skin, while the expressive gaze lends the piece a remarkable presence. The reverse bears the registered trademark "blue waves" of 1923, a green stamp beneath the glaze. A crown and the inscription "ROYAL COPENHAGEN DENMARK" are also present. The absence of scratches attests to its exceptional quality. A rare decorative piece, highly sought after by collectors

Dealer

Jonathan Marchal

Asian art, Antiques and collectibles

Tel : 0033 6 18527595

Paris 75001

of Scandinavian porcelain and Royal Copenhagen marine animal figurines. Length 19 cm, width 10.5 cm