Description

A charming oil on panel in the style of Barbizon paintings, depicting a lively scene of five figures returning from the fields, accompanied by an ox-drawn cart in a rural setting. The colors are superb and beautifully rendered, with the background bathed in a rosy twilight. The effect is very successful and adds considerable value to this painting. The figures are seen from a distance in a lovely, bucolic countryside. What is immediately striking is the hazy quality of the scene as a whole, a subtle sfumato that is very pleasing to the eye. The panel is in its original fluted frame with beautiful gilding. Signed Fery in red in the lower left corner. A very fine painting of a rural scene reminiscent of the Barbizon school.
