The subject is rendered in high relief in the white upper layer of the onyx against the dark brown ground, displaying masterful lapidary craftsmanship. The emperor is shown with characteristic wavy hair, aquiline profile, and draped shoulders in the classical manner.The cameo is set within an elaborate gold mount of exceptional quality, executed in the Etruscan Revival style fashionable in early 19th century Italy. The frame features a double rope-twist border surrounding the stone, enclosed by an openwork gallery of scrolling wire tendrils and cannetille rosettes with granulated spheres. This type of intricate goldwork was particularly
