Condition : Bon état

Material : Porcelain

Height : 31

Description

Asia, 20th century: A pair of covered Chinese porcelain pots, richly decorated in the Famille Rose style, featuring an elegant, continuous floral motif of blooming roses, foliage, and flowering branches, symbolizing prosperity, harmony, and refinement. Each pot has a perfectly balanced ovoid shape, adorned with painted, multi-lobed reserves of delicately nuanced floral bouquets, framed by a profusion of foliage rendered with great finesse. The matching lids, with their continuous floral decoration, emphasize the unity and quality of the set. The polychromy is soft and luminous, dominated by powdery pink, celadon green, and honey yellow tones, characteristic of refined Chinese productions from the early 20th century, intended for a literate clientele or for prestigious export.
