Description

A tall, historicist column carved in wood, dating from the 19th century. The column is painted gray and rests on a square base. The shaft is richly decorated with scale-like motifs and winged cherub heads, lending it a decorative and symbolic elegance. The top is crowned with an openwork capital featuring vegetal motifs, a testament to the exceptional skill of the artisans of the period. A remarkable example of historicist design and masterful wood carving.
