Description

Long ago, when you came from a good family, everyone learned to play music, write poetry, draw, and paint. The world of art held no secrets for these young people, and here we have the perfect illustration of that era: this charming, unsigned portrait of a completely anonymous young woman, which remains as a testament, carrying its own little mystery that never fails to intrigue us. Its frame is made of repoussé brass, and it retains its original convex protective glass. Dimensions of the oval portrait: 9 x 6.5 cm. Shipping within France and internationally; please contact me for details.
