

19th Century Asia: Signed Japanese Terracotta Vase, Meiji Period

350 EUR

Signature : signé a identifier

Period : 19th century

Condition : Etat d'usage

Material : Terracotta

Height : 33

Description

Asia, 19th century: A signed Japanese terracotta vase from the Meiji period, with a golden-brown patina, richly decorated with high-relief scenes that demonstrate meticulous craftsmanship and exceptional quality. Baluster-shaped, the vase features a slightly flared neck, highlighted by a finely chiseled Greek key pattern, providing an elegant transition to the main body. The body is adorned with lively scenes depicting traditional figures, likely scholars or peasants, within a naturalistic landscape composed of vegetation, a pavilion, aquatic elements, and stylized animals. The reliefs, rendered with finesse and depth, stand out harmoniously against the dark patina, creating a subtle interplay of contrasts between the dark brown areas and the gilded highlights. Floral and vegetal motifs, distributed across the

Dealer

Tino antiquites

Mobilier

Mobile : 0763127955

11 rue de bel air à l'huis laurent

Dun les Places 58230

entire body, enhance the decorative balance and visual richness of the piece. The vase rests on a decorated circular base, ensuring excellent stability, while the entire piece retains a beautiful, even patina, a sign of natural and authentic aging. A decorative object of character, this vase stands out as a striking piece, ideal for an elegant interior, an Asian art collection, or a refined eclectic decor. It can be displayed alone or integrated into a composition, where it will immediately draw the eye. Period: late 19th century Origin/Inspiration: Asia Material: patinated terracotta Decoration: figurative scenes and landscapes in high relief Condition: very good condition, antique patina, slight signs of age consistent with its age Dimensions: 33 cm A decorative object of great presence, combining exoticism, elegance, and craftsmanship, intended for lovers of antique bronzes and Asian art.