Description

Originating from the sale of the contents of the Bustros Palace, this monumental chandelier by Baccarat, dating from the 19th century, is a remarkable example of the Louis XV style. It features an impressive array of 42 lights, highlighting the magnificence and refinement characteristic of the grand aristocratic residences of the period. Made entirely of crystal, it is richly adorned with finely cut pendants and balusters. The arms and wall sconces, decorated with garlands and rosettes, lend the piece a timeless elegance and a wealth of ornamentation. Despite some imperfections due to its age, this chandelier remains an exceptional piece, a testament to the incomparable craftsmanship of Baccarat and a true luminous treasure, worthy of the finest collections.
