Description

A Louis XV style curved display cabinet in cream lacquered wood enhanced with gilding, opening with a glazed door featuring engraved decoration, framed by shaped uprights. The silhouette is slender and well-proportioned, resting on four cabriole legs adorned with foliate drops. The interior is lined with a deep red fabric, offering a particularly flattering contrast with the light lacquer and gilding. It features three shelves, ideal for displaying collectibles: porcelain, bronzes, glassware, precious souvenirs, or curiosities. The carved decoration--shells, foliage, and cartouches--is delicate yet legible, without excess, typical of high-quality decorative pieces from the late 19th century, intended for bourgeois drawing rooms or display cabinets. Highlights: Elegant curved shape, highly decorative; light
