Description

A highly evocative Orientalist watercolor depicting three Bedouins seated in front of a tent, playing music. One holds a flute and the other two a tambourine. The watercolor dates back to the very end of the 19th century, according to the artist's family, who did not sign the painting. The scene is set in a Bedouin encampment in Algeria. The figures are very well rendered in their poses and with their oriental features. The work is in good condition, without tears or losses. I would, however, point out a slight discoloration along a horizontal line located 2 cm from the top edge. It is presented framed in a period frame and protected by glass. Sheet dimensions: 28.5 x 38.5 cm. Frame dimensions: 34.5 x 44.5 cm.
