Description

Oil on canvas depicting a landscape enlivened by a stone bridge spanning a river, attributable to the French Post-Impressionist movement of the 20th century. The brushwork is free, thick, and highly expressive, applied with both palette knife and brush, with a generous impasto particularly visible in the vegetation and stonework. The palette, dominated by deep greens, warm ochres, and nuanced blues, accurately conveys a luminous and vibrant atmosphere. The work is signed lower right "Maurice Lemaître," a 20th-century French artist known for his sensitive and structured landscapes, rooted in the modernized tradition of plein air painting. The painting is presented in a substantial carved, painted, and gilded wooden frame.
