Ancient 16th Century Terracotta Jug

400 EUR

Period : 17th century

Condition : Très bon état

Material : Terracotta

Description

The object shown in the image is an ancient terracotta jug with handles, which due to its shape and function can also be called an amphora or jar. These vessels were traditionally used for transporting and storing liquid or semi-liquid foodstuffs, such as oil, wine, and preserves.Main FeaturesMaterial: It is made of natural terracotta, a common material for these types of vessels.Design: The vase has a rounded body, two handles (called anse) for gripping and carrying, and a mouth with a lid.Origin and Period: Objects very similar to the one in the image are often identified as dating back to the 16th century and originating from central Italy.Condition: The rustic appearance and visible wear are consistent with the age and historical use of the object.H. 33 cm - W. 30 cm

Dealer

Antichita' Taddei Gilberto

arte antiquariato XVII XVIII XIX SECOLO

Tel : +39 3313821818

Mobile : +39 3313821818

via masini 135

Castelfiorentino 50051