Description

A rare Art Nouveau washbasin in English porcelain, made by Établissements Porcher around 1900. A true testament to the refinement and elegance of this era, it features a magnificent polychrome floral painting accompanied by delicate friezes that enhance its unique character. Its harmonious design and artistic details make it much more than a simple utilitarian item: it is a true work of art that will bring a touch of charm and prestige to your bathroom. Perfect for lovers of the Belle Époque who wish to incorporate a historical piece into their décor. Note the presence of the company stamp "Établissements Porcher Paris Révin Porcelaine anglaise".

Établissements Porcher: In 1898, André and Emile Porcher established their first sanitary ware factory in Révin in the Ardennes region. In 1910,
