Description

An exceptional large decorative Sèvres porcelain bowl, dating from the 19th century, richly ornamented and mounted in a sumptuous, finely chased gilt-bronze mount in the Louis XV style. The body, with its undulating shape, is decorated on one side with a polychrome, hand-painted, gallant pastoral scene depicting lively figures around a well in a rural landscape, in the 18th-century style. The reverse is adorned with a large bouquet of polychrome flowers in bright and delicate colors against a white background. The whole is framed by gilt friezes and scrolls against an elegant sky-blue ground characteristic of Sèvres production. The porcelain is set in a high-quality gilt-bronze mount, richly openwork and chased with rocaille motifs, foliage, and scrolls. The asymmetrical handles with foliate
