Description

Sculpture depicting the head of a monk, eyes closed, in a pose of contemplation characteristic of the work of Georges Wasterlain, a Belgian sculptor active in the mid-20th century. The simplified volumes, the surface enlivened by sober planes, and the expressive power of the face convey the artist's search for inner peace. The work rests on a wooden base adorned with a plaque bearing the title and the artist's name. His signature is also carved into the sculpture on the left cheek. A fine example of post-war Belgian figurative modernist sculpture. Excellent condition
