Description

Large panelled painting in its original woodwork, adorned with a very large canvas depicting a Bacchanalian scene with angels and putti. This important oil on canvas is housed in its original woodwork, carved with flowers, shells, and acanthus leaves with a gray-green patina--one might even say an almond green. Look closely at the photos; the woodwork is very finely carved with flowers and interlacing patterns, floral motifs with a few small blossoms, all forming a large frame. At the bottom center is a large acanthus leaf. The whole is very harmonious. The large oil on canvas is inspired by antiquity and Bacchanalian scenes, where Silenus, usually drunken, is mounted on a goat surrounded by bacchantes and fauns. Here, the painter has playfully created a version with angels and putti, featuring a putto riding a goat surrounded by mischievous puttos and an angel in a woodland landscape. The atmosphere conveyed is... The scene evokes celebration and joy. The colors are vibrant and fresh. There are a few minor chips and very slight repainting, but nothing serious. A charming piece in the Louis XV style, dating from the 19th century, Napoleon III era. A beautiful, slightly naive painting of wood paneling depicting children. Dimensions: 176 cm high and 133 cm at its widest point for the canvas; 80.5 cm for the paneling and 61 cm for the painting.
