Description

A pair of oak chairs, crafted in the Louis-Philippe style in the mid-20th century, embodying both the solid craftsmanship and understated refinement characteristic of this style. Their solid wood frames have a warm patina that highlights the natural grain of the oak, while the gently curved backrest features a central openwork handle, both decorative and functional. The traditionally designed seat rests on an integrated spring system. Both the seat and backrest are upholstered in a bluish-grey floral fabric, studded around the edge. The finely turned front legs are fitted with small casters, allowing for easy movement without compromising stability. The saber-shaped rear legs ensure a firm and balanced seat. These chairs will blend harmoniously into a classic, romantic, or vintage interior.
