Description

Superb two-part Louis XV period buffet in solid honey cherry wood, 18th century. The lower section consists of two doors with arched tops, featuring strong molding and large original hinges. It has two large drawers, known as "knife drawers." The two front feet end in scrolls. The lower plinth is highly sculpted with a central fan-shaped decoration. The uprights are molded. The lower side plinth is shaped. The upper section consists of two doors adorned with very fine original keyhole escutcheons. Each door is composed of two highly shaped panels in a typically Louis XV style, like the lower doors, with triple molding. The frame also has strong molding. The upper plinth, in the shape of an arched top, is carved with a very elegant molding and a vase of flowers in its center. The sides
