

Two Bottles Of Perfume For Coty From The 1900s

Description

Two blown and molded glass bottles with their original stoppers...Made of sandblasted blown and molded glass, dating from the 1900s...They are from the same period and are the same model, but with slight differences in detail... The smaller bottle has a two-tone amber satin stopper, while the larger one has a gray satin stopper...The smaller bottle has its original label (Oregano), though it's not perfect...The smaller bottle has a small oval cartouche within the molded design... Both have "FRANCE" and "COTY" molded into the base...The larger bottle was likely for cologne. There are a few small chips on the bottom of the larger bottle's stopper...The smaller bottle contains some perfume residue...Weight: 812 grams
