Description

A very beautiful early 19th-century watercolor depicting a pre-Romantic landscape. A very interesting work with a lovely view in the background of a gradation of mountains. The colors have remained very vivid and contrasting, which is rare for a work of this period. The very fine definition of details, such as the vegetation, testifies to the artist's mastery, especially in a piece of this size. Dimensions of the watercolor alone: 53 x 36 cm. Also noteworthy is the very fine quality of the 19th-century frame and mat with its giltwood mount.
