Description

H. MALFROY - The Flower Market at the Madeleine, Paris. Oil on canvas, signed, depicting a lively Parisian scene in front of the Madeleine church. The painter elegantly captures the atmosphere of the flower market, very popular at the beginning of the 20th century, where strollers, merchants, and Parisian trams mingle. The monumental colonnade of the Madeleine structures the composition and, along with the tram, gives the whole a strong Parisian identity. The luminous palette, dominated by warm and nuanced tones, brings depth and vibrancy to the scene. The brushwork is supple and expressive, in a highly decorative, post-impressionist style. This painting belongs to the tradition of Parisian street scenes sought after by collectors, particularly for their timeless elegance and decorative value.
