Description

This magnificent antique sculpture, dating from the late Qing Dynasty to the Republic of China period (approximately 1880-1940), stands 32 cm tall and is finely carved from genuine ivory. It depicts a sage with a long beard, a symbol of longevity, tenderly cradling a child. The details of the robe and facial expressions demonstrate exceptional craftsmanship. The base bears a Qianlong reign mark, adding a prestigious historical dimension to this collector's item. Its natural patina underscores the authenticity and elegance of this refined piece of oriental art.
