Description

The Folding Kodak No. 2 Hawkette is a camera manufactured by Kodak in 1930. It uses 120 film and produces 6x9 cm images. Its body is made of marbled brown Bakelite, an innovative plastic material for the time, and it is famous for its Art Deco design. It was, in fact, the first camera with a plastic body produced by Kodak. It is equipped with a full-size viewfinder and a folding mechanism with chrome spacers. Link to the website:
