Description

Description of the work: René Mels (1909-1977)
Belgium Bouquet of Flowers (1940) Oil on canvas Dimensions: 80 × 70 cm Signed lower right Handwritten signature and date "1940" on the reverse This floral composition displays a rich and nuanced palette, dominated by deep greens, intense blues, and touches of reds and yellows that enliven the pictorial surface. The bouquet, rendered with great freedom of brushstroke, seems almost to vibrate under the effect of color and gesture. The paint is worked vigorously, alternating between flat areas and impasto, giving the whole a strong and expressive presence. The work illustrates René Mels' interest in classical subjects revisited through a personal, sensitive, and spontaneous style. The composition, both structured and free, testifies to a search for balance between form and color, placing this canvas within the continuity of mid-20th-century modern painting. Condition: Good overall condition. There is some visible wear on the edges, which will be completely concealed once framed by a frame of your choice. Presentation: This artwork is sold unframed. In summary, this signed and dated oil on canvas is a high-quality piece, representative of René Mels' work around 1940. Its size, rich colors, and clearly established authenticity make it suitable for both collectors and modern art enthusiasts seeking an expressive and decorative work.
