Description

Academic Study of Eyes after Michelangelo's David, Tuscan School, mid-19th century, 18.5 × 18 cm
Pencil on paper

Mid-19th-century academic study inspired by Michelangelo's David, a subject widely used in artistic training of the period. The drawing is executed on fine antique paper of good quality, with a restrained and balanced presentation.

The sheet comes from folders of drawings preserved in an old Tuscan property, bringing together studies and exercises produced by several generations between the 18th century and the first quarter of the 20th century.
