Description

This refined work depicts a lively stag hunt, an emblematic theme of 19th-century French painting. Eugène Petit unfolds a vibrant and perfectly balanced composition, where riders in red coats, a pack of hounds, and a wooded landscape interact harmoniously. The scene takes place at the edge of a body of water, rendered with subtlety, reflecting the artist's mastery in capturing atmosphere and the effects of light. The movement of the hounds, the elegance of the horses, and the depth of the landscape testify to a keen sense of observation and great pictorial virtuosity. A painter renowned for his animal and hunting scenes, Eugène Petit belongs to the realist and naturalist tradition of his time, with particular attention to detail and narrative. The presence of an old exhibition label on the back reinforces the
