18th Century George III Period Mahogany Drop-leaf Dining Table

2 100 EUR

Period : 18th century

Condition : Très bon état

Material : Mahogany

Width : 123

Height : 73

Depth : 102

Description

Elegant Late 18th-Century George III Mahogany Marquetry Drop-Leaf Dining TableA handsome late 18th-century George III period mahogany drop-leaf dining table, retaining its original, beautifully shaped, figured solid tops. The rectangular top has drop leaves on either side, outlined with fine satinwood marquetry stringing, providing excellent versatility for both everyday use and entertaining. The leaves are supported by sturdy hinged gate cabriole legs with pad feet, ensuring stability and ease of use. The rich color and enticing patina give the piece a timeless allure, adding depth and character to any room. Over time, the mahogany has developed a wonderful depth of color that accentuates the warmth and figure of the timber, a hallmark of furniture from this era. Georgian pieces are

Dealer

Anthony Short Antiques
18C & 19C Fine Period Antiques, Decorative Furniture & Works of Art
Tel : 00 44 7595603348
Mobile : 00 44 7595603348

Market Square
Petworth GU28 0AH

highly prized for their superior cabinetmaking, classic proportions and exquisite choice of materials, and this table is no exception. This dining table is not only a testament to exceptional Georgian craftsmanship but also a striking centerpiece for any home that values history, quality and understated elegance.