Description

Antique and authentic bronze sculpture with a double patina. Naturalistic subject depicting a stonemason. The scene highlights a young, bare-chested man, captured in intense physical exertion, perfectly rendered by the artist. With taut muscles and a focused gaze, he lifts or sets down a heavy rock on an old wheelbarrow. The whole rests on a naturalistic base evoking rocky terrain. The dynamic composition, characteristic of Drouot, underscores the strength, dignity, and nobility of manual labor. The bronze displays a beautiful, nuanced brown patina, enhancing the volumes and interplay of light. The signature E. Drouot is visible on the base. Foundry mark. 43 cm high. Very good condition
