Lacquered Sculpture "Reclining Angel" - Early 18th Century

Antique sculpture depicting a reclining cherub/angel, made of carved wood, with traces of the original polychrome and a patina of age. The figure is depicted in a dynamic and natural pose, with the body resting on stylized drapery, one arm raised and the other resting on the chest. The face is delicately modeled, with a sweet and contemplative expression, typical of Baroque or late Baroque decorative art.

The work shows signs of wear consistent with its age, including small losses, abrasions, and paint loss, which testify to its authenticity and historical appeal. Overall, the sculpture is structurally stable and has a strong decorative
