Description

Elegant cherub dating from the 18th century, finely carved in wood and enriched with original mecca gilding. The sculpture features a delicate and harmonious face, with soft and serene features typical of devotional and decorative works of the period. The wings, finely carved, add movement and grace to the overall composition. The warm and luminous gilding retains an authentic aged patina, with natural signs of wear that attest to its age and enhance its historical charm without detracting from its aesthetic readability. Originally intended for a sacred decorative setting or architectural ensemble, this cherub now stands as a refined decorative element for classical interiors or collections of antique wooden sculpture and sacred art. Period: 18th century Material: carved
