Description

This charming little wardrobe proves Adolf Loos wrong: ornamentation is not a crime! Just look at its doors, richly carved with delightful and delicate motifs, its ornate ironwork, its frame adorned with a frieze of heart-shaped motifs, its dainty ball feet, and its artfully molded cornice. Everything here employs the vocabulary of a masterful Louis XIV style, on this charming wardrobe of modest size, perfectly suited to small spaces. This contemporary wardrobe from the end of Louis XIV's reign is in very good condition.
